

THE INDIANA CHILD SUPPORT Employer Online Payment System

Your company may be legally required to transfer child support funds electronically.

The Indiana Child Support Bureau has developed a Free Website for employers to electronically transfer child support payments to the State Central Collection Unit.

On July 1, 2002 Indiana Senate Bill 178 became law. This law requires all employers with 50 or more employees and more than one child support obligor to electronically transfer child support payments.

What Do You Need to Use the Website?

Yes. It meets all the security requirements dictated by the Indiana State Board of Accounts.

Who Can Use This Website?

Any employer with Indiana child support to process, including:

- Employers with multiple companies
- Employers with multiple payroll periods
- Accounting firms
- Payroll processing companies

How Does It Work?

The Child Support Bureau will do the initial setup, create identifications and passwords so the employer can access the Website. This includes entering all pertinent employer information, including bank information and current child support cases.

An agreement form will be faxed to the employer along with instructions on using the Website. The Child Support Bureau will verify with the Bank that the routing and account numbers are correct and then authorize the employer to make payments.

The employer may access the Website to update, submit and verify payments every pay period. This information is downloaded into the state's mainframe and an electronic fund transfer (EFT) debit is created. It is then forwarded to the employer's bank on the effective date removing the total amount of child support payments to be paid. The following day a confirmation E-mail is sent notifying the employer that this transaction took place.
